Every resident in Southern California knows Sit 'n Sleep CEO Larry Miller is a funny guy —but many do not know how charitable he is.

The iconic Los Angeles brand has recently moved into its new 8,000 square foot showroom at its first Santa Barbara location in the Funk Zone to ensure that all Santa Barbara residents get a healthy night's sleep. But the store has not only moved to town—it has also joined the community. Sit 'n Sleep Santa Barbara has partnered with both Make A Wish Foundation and Habitat for Humanity to provide for the people of Santa Barbara.

Sit 'n Sleep is focused on helping people find the right mattress for their needs, body type and health, and the new Match Technology helps everyday shoppers do just that. Yet many families in Santa Barbara cannot afford the luxury of a new bed, or a new home for that matter.

To help house the families of Santa Barbara, Habitat for Humanity has built seven affordable homes and is currently working on its newest project, a 12-unit complex on East Canon Perdido. Ground breaking for this project is set to start this fall, and Sit 'n Sleep has pledged to donate bedding and mattresses to all 12 homes, granting the new homeowners a comfortable place to rest their heads. In addition, Sit 'n Sleep will sponsor the Framing Ceremony for the Canon Perdido Project.

Sit 'n Sleep has participated in similar ventures in the past, donating beds in Los Angeles. Clearly Larry is a nice guy...he has made sure his company lives up to its mission – to make sure ALL Californians get a healthy and happy night's sleep at the best price possible. And for 12 lucky families in Santa Barbara, its FREEEEEEEE!

Thank you Sit 'n Sleep and welcome to Santa Barbara!
